VOL. XI. NO. 3.

GREENVILLE, KY., THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 25, 1909.

50c. PER YEAR, IN ADVANCE

Problems in Management.

In attempting to better and strengthen great American repair and manufacturing plants says a writer in the Engineering Magazine, it is found necessary to be equipped with the persevering logic of the British, the innovating logic of the French, the thoroughness of the Germans, the open mindedness of the Japanese, and the adaptability of the American, and to use the staff first to determine and then to facilitate their attainment.

To enter a shop employing 2,000 men, each one doing an average of four different jobs each day, aggregating for all the men 8,000 separate tasks changing from day to day, so that there is a total of tens of thousands of different tasks in a year, to be expected to standardize each and every one of the tasks as to both time and cost, is a task; not more daunting perhaps than the proposition would have been to the primitive woman, whose hair was a mass of matted tangles, that each and every one of the separate hairs of her head ought to be brushed and combed into its perfect place at least twice every day.

It does not require much experience to distinguish between the well arranged head of hair and the matted one, nor does it require much experience to recognize in a machine shop the difference between what is and what ought to be.

Electricity in Persia.

While sojourning recently at Shiraz, Persia, on business connected with an overland telegraph, an Englishman was visited by a Persian noble who had received a paralytic stroke in his left shoulder and arm. He said he had been told that there were magicians in the west who cured all diseases "by the aid of this fine electricity." The Englishman, having moderated the Persian's expectations by remarking that the statement was an exaggeration, had a powerful battery prepared. To the two poles of the battery copper wire was attached, and at the extremity of each wire a damp sponge. The Persian was invited to grasp one in the hand of his paralyzed arm.

Timidly complying he was astonished to feel no sensation. "Wait a moment," said the Englishman, and clapped the sponge on the man's shoulder. With a leap and a yell he bounded out of the room, amid the uproarious laughter of the officials. The shock effected a partial cure, but the frightened man refused to submit to a second application, declaring that he would far sooner suffer the paralysis.

Another Persian, whose curiosity conquered his fear, while examining the battery touched one of the terminals of the machine. As he felt no sensation, he laid his hand on the other terminal. A sudden yell and a backward jump were the result. The man was afterward heard telling his companions that he had been bitten by the evil one.

If you would have a safe yet certain Cough Remedy in the home, try Dr. Shoop's—at least once. It is thoroughly unlike any other Cough preparation. Its taste will be entirely new to you—unless it is already your favorite Cough Remedy. No opium, chloroform, or any other stupefying ingredients are used. The tender leaves of a harmless, lung healing mountainous shrub, give to Dr. Shoop's Cough Remedy its wonderful curative properties. It is truly a most certain and trustworthy prescription. Sold by all dealers.

Cleaning the Cow's Teeth.

If a certain California physician has his way the tooth brush will become a recognized necessity in the dairy of the near future, and regular cleaning of the teeth will lessen the danger of impure milk and improve the bovine health and disposition.

Well, why not? Thousand dollar pedigreed lapdogs are manicured, massaged, perfumed and petted, and their health is looked after by dentists and physicians. One law-abiding cow is worth more than all the poodles in America. Why not give her as good care?

The other day John D. Rockefeller had a toothache so painful that it dragged him from New York clear to Cleveland to see a dentist. Who knows but toothache might have caused the cow to kick over the lamp?

Not only cows and horses, but people, should have more attention paid to the teeth. It is too little realized what a serious effect on general health, especially in children, dental diseases often have. When popular knowledge of this fact becomes widespread the public will insist on expert care of school children's teeth, and the next generation of Americans will regard toothache as a curiosity.

Detecting Tuberculosis.

In a previous article was noted the difficulty of an early diagnosis of consumption, and it was shown how necessary such a diagnosis is, since upon it depends, in many instances, ability to cure the disease. It was stated also that the old way of detecting consumption, still used commonly in the case of cattle, had been superseded by other and simpler methods. One of these methods is that called the "ophthalmic reaction," because the test is made in the eye. It is also called the Calmette or Wolff-Elsner test, because it was devised about the same time by the one in France and the other in Germany.

It consists in the instillation of a drop of dilute tuberculin into one eye. If the subject of the test is entirely free from tuberculosis, nothing follows, but if he suffers from the disease, even in its very beginnings, the eye will after a few days, become a little red, and perhaps very slightly inflamed.

Another mode of employing tuberculin is called the "cuti-reaction" or cutaneous test. It was devised by a Viennese physician, and is made as follows: The delicate skin on the inner arm of the subject is carefully cleansed with soap and water, and then with ether. Then a drop of tuberculin is placed on the skin, and the arm is sacrificed as in vaccination, first in a dry part, then in the center of the drop of tuberculin. At the end of one or two days, if the subject has incipient tuberculosis, a small pimple comes at the place vaccinated with the tuberculin, but not at the other point which was scarified at the same time. The skin for a short distance surrounding the pimple may be more or less reddened, and sometimes there are several pimples instead of one.

A simplification of this cutaneous test is what has been called the percutaneous test. This consists in merely rubbing tuberculin on the skin, either the undiluted substance, or an ointment made of equal parts of tuberculin and lanolin. When the reaction is positive, that is to say, when the subject is in the early stage of tuberculosis, the ointment is followed within two days by an eruption on the arm of a number of small pimples, which itch more or less, and are usually surrounded by an area of reddish or purplish skin. After ten days or two weeks the eruption gradually disappears.

None of these tests is absolutely perfect, for sometimes a reaction occurs when there is no tuberculosis. The two skin tests are about equal as regards reliability. The eye test although fairly accurate, is beginning to be thought dangerous, and will probably soon be abandoned in favor of one or the other of the absolutely safe skin tests.

Heart Strength

Heart Strength, or Heart Weakness, means Nerve Strength, or Nerve Weakness—nothing more. Putatively, not one weak heart in a hundred is, in itself, actually diseased. It is almost always a hidden tiny little nerve that really is all at fault. This obscure nerve—the Cardiac, or Heart Nerve—simply needs, and must have, more power, more stability, more controlling, more governing strength. Without that the heart must continue to fail, and the stomach and kidneys also have these same controlling nerves.

This clearly explains why, as a medicine, Dr. Shoop's Restorative has in the past done so much for weak and ailing hearts. Dr. Shoop first sought the cause of all this painful, palpitating, suffocating heart distress. Dr. Shoop's Restorative—this powerful prescription—is also directed to these weak and wasting nerve centers. It builds it up, it strengthens it, it offers real, genuine heart help.

If you would have strong hearts, strong digestion, strengthen these nerves—re-establish them as needed, with

Dr. Shoop's Restorative

It is a very serious matter to ask for one medicine and have the wrong one given you. The reputation of this old, reliable medicine, for constipation, indigestion and liver trouble, is firmly established. It does not irritate other medicines. Francis Engraving Machine.

The J. L. Roark Estate, furniture dealers and undertakers, has added to its equipment in the undertaking department a Francis Engraving Machine, as illustrated. This machine is one of the very few in the State and goes to show the progressive spirit of the management in providing equipment generally considered necessary only in the larger cities. With this machine the firm will now be able to supply individually engraved casket name plates, instead of the stamped stock patterns usually employed. And while the city undertakers make a charge of $3 for such plates the people of this county will receive them absolutely without extra cost regardless of the character of outfit purchased. The machine has been in the show window of the firm for some days, and its beauty, and the perfect work it does, have been admired by hundreds of people. Articles of every character can be engraved in much better manner than usually done by hand.

This machine adds to the most complete undertaking establishment in this territory. The firm has the only practicing licensed embalmer in the county; a fine funeral car; largest stocks of coffins, caskets, robes, wrappers, slippers, etc.; complete equipment for sanitary work and disinfection. To provide the best in every branch is the constant study of the management, and the generous appreciation shown by the public has caused still deeper and greater determination on the part of the concern to give constantly improving service, and on the most favorable basis. With this in view, other features will be added from time to time, as they appear.

The Francis is fitted with all attachments for engraving articles of any character, and the mechanical perfection of the machine appeals to all. The public is given a special invitation to call at any time and see the machine
